General Washington D.C Travel Information

Time Zone

Washington D.C is GMT – 04:00 hours (check current time in Washington D.C.)

Airports in Washington D.C.

There are three major airports in the Washington, DC region:

- Ronald Reagan Washington National Airport (airport code: DCA) is located just across the Potomac River in Virginia and is the closest airport to DC. Reagan Airport is accessible via its own Metro stop on the Blue and Yellow lines. To catch a taxi, look for the official taxi stand outside of baggage claim (a ride into downtown DC will cost about $15-20).
- Washington Dulles International Airport (airport code: IAD) is located 42km (26 miles) from DC in suburban Virginia. Dulles Airport is also the primary international airport for the DC region. Dulles Airport has a dedicated access road that makes getting to or from the airport efficient via car, taxi or airport shuttle. Washington Flyer taxi cabs exclusively service Dulles Airport. Taxi stands are located outside the main terminal and a ride into DC will cost about $60-$70. There are several bus services (Silver Line Express, bus Route 983 and the Metro bus 5A) that connect Washington Dulles airport with the closest metro station, Wiehle-Reston East Station. Virginia Breeze bus connect the airport with Virginia area and Megabus go to Union Station (central station).
- Baltimore/Washington International Thurgood Marshall Airport (airport code: BWI) is located 51km (32 miles) from DC and is accessible via an MARC/Amtrak train route that picks up and drops off at Union Station. There is a metro (Red line) that takes you from Union Station to the World Bank.

Rideshare apps like Uber and Lyft are also good options to get to and from all airports.

Banking and Currency Exchange Facilities

The official currency of the United States is the US Dollar.

ATMs dispensing US Dollars are available at the airport and throughout the city. Foreign currency can also be changed at the airport, which has 24-hr service, banks and foreign currency exchange bureaux.

Major international cards are widely accepted.

Electricity

Power plugs and sockets are of type A and B. The standard voltage is 120 V, and the standard frequency is 60 Hz.

Health

For the latest updates on international travel to and from the United States, participants should visit the CDC website.

Public transport

Metro

Washington, DC's Metro is one of the busiest public transportation systems in the country. Its expansive network of tunnels and above ground tracks connect all four quadrants of DC with suburban Virginia and Maryland. The system is heavily used by local commuters and it's a popular, convenient and affordable way for visitors to DC to get around the region.

The Metro consists of six color-coded lines: Red, Blue, Orange, Yellow, Green and Silver. The lines are connected to each other via transfer stations and many Metro stops are serviced by more than one color. Each train car has an exterior electronic sign that marks the color and the direction of the train. Direction is indicated by the final station of that line.

Metro fares are calculated by how many stops you travel and vary during peak and off-peak hours. During peak hours, most fares range from $2.25 to $6 per trip. During off-peak hours, fares typically range from $1.85 to $3.85.

Metro riders must pay via SmarTrip card or the SmarTrip app on iPhone and Apple Watch. SmarTrip cards are plastic, rechargeable fare cards that can be purchased by cash or credit at any Metro station or in advance on wmata.com. You can calculate your fare between two stops using Metro's Trip Planner. The SmarTrip app can be used anywhere the SmarTrip card is accepted, including rail, buses and Metro-operated parking lots. Metro offers a full-service, touch-free payment option at every single stop.

Bus

Metrobus runs hundreds of routes throughout the city and the greater Washington, DC area, with more than 1,400 buses using compressed natural gas or a hybrid electric drive system helping to keep DC eco-friendly.

Weather

Daytime high temperatures early in March in Washington DC tend to be mostly in the low 50s F (about 11 C), to the mid 30s F (about 0-2 C) at night. About half the month is sunny (approximately 7 hours) or partly sunny, and some rain could be expected. Significant precipitation amounts of 0.5 inches (13mm) or more, usually occur on only 2 or 3 days out of the month, and snow is possible but relatively uncommon.

More information can be found here (in F) or here (in C).
